Num. 2054

SATURDAY, JANUARY 16. 1742.

7. 2052

Thurs, December 25.

EVER was so much Secrecy kept at Court as at this time. The Ministers, who formerly took a Pleasure to impart Affairs of little Consequence to their Friends, are so reserv'd to them all, that one would imagine they were forbid to speak a Word out of the Council of State. Mean if we were to form a solid Judgment of Affairs, they are not such as they appear to be; and as much as there seems to be between this Court and Vienna, one may be convinc'd that there's an understanding betwixt them, and if our Troops act, will only be to stop the Designs of the Spaniards. The negotiations between this Court and that of Vienna were not carried on so long but something must have been concluded, and the Preparations making for Defence in the Dominions of the Queen of Hungary are considerable, that 'tis not to be imagin'd but she expects some Assistance from hence: And notwithstanding the Manifesto issued from this Court, the Correspondence with the Countries depending on the Queen has not broke off, and things are still on the same Footing and manag'd with the same Harmony, &c.

Malta in the Isle of Corsica, Dec. 29. The Dame Blanche, former Enemy to the Republick, is still in the Mountains at the Head of a great Number of French Deserters. It is probable that the Malecontents contribute to the maintenance of those Troops, and there's reason to fear, that the Baron de Neuhooff is return'd to this Island, where the Malecontents have seem'd for some time more obstinate than ever. And what further confirms this Conjecture is, that the Malecontents meet often together to hold Conferences, and that some have as good as own'd that their Leader was still at hand to support them in what they were to be treated with Rigor and oblig'd to their Submission to their old Masters the Genoese.

Genoa, Dec. 30. The Spanish Horse has suffer'd so much on board the Gallies that brought them hither, that 'tis believ'd it will be necessary to put them ashore to be sent by Land. The Count de Condon Adjutant General to the Queen of Hungary, who came hither from Milan to raise some Money, is gone, and 'tis suppos'd he has succeeded, but what the Sum was is not known, the Affair having been secretly negotiated with the General Privincini. The Government has laid an Assessment of the hundredth Penny upon all the Inhabitants of this City and Neighbourhood. The Spanish Ambassador at Venice being expected here as he passes thro' Tuscany, occasions Speculation.

Prague, Dec. 30. We hear that there has been a bloody Strife between a Detachment of the Confederate Army and that of the Queen of Hungary, but we know no other Circumstance of it than that two Days ago several Carts came hither laden with French and Saxon wounded Soldiers. The Prussians, who hitherto had behaved with Moderation, commit all the Outrages imaginable; they even come into our Suburbs to carry off the Inhabitants, without excepting the Clergy whom they drag even from the Altars.

Vienna, Jan. 6. The last Day of the old Year we receiv'd Advice, that Prince Lobkowitz with his Hussars at Teufschbrod upon the Saxon Troops advancing to him, repuls'd them so that 300 of 'em were kill'd and 150 taken Prisoners. And on New Year's Day came Advice from Upper Austria, that when Count Khevenhuller oblig'd the Bavarians to abandon Steier, 600 of 'em were kill'd, and that in the Chace near 1700 Bavarians and French were cut in pieces in the several Villages thro' which they were pursu'd.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Leeds, Jan. 12. It is observable that the present sickly Season has bore the hardest upon People in advanced Years; the foremost among whom, that have been publickly mentioned, is Mr. Philips of Thorner in this Neighbourhood, who died the 4th inst. in the 118th Year of his Age.

Many entertaining Circumstances and Events relate to this old Man; the few that will be presented are, That being Constable of Thorner about Ninety Years ago, he upon some Disorders committed, imprison'd two of Oliver Cromwell's Soldiers in the Town-stocks, who upon Information brought him of the Fact, took no Reluctance at it, and only wish'd that all the Fellows he had along with him had but half the Courage of this Constable.

About two Years and a half ago, Mr. Philips made a Visit, on Horseback, to the late Lady Hastings in her last Sickness: The while that he staid, which might be about four or five Hours, he was very sociable, bore a proper Share in Conversation, and discover'd no Defect in his Memory or Understanding.

The last great Honour in Life that he propos'd to himself, was to go to the County-Election, at which tho' his Vote could only be acceptable to some, his very Appearance must have given a secret Pleasure to all.

From Halifax we hear, that on Sunday Morning died there much lamented, the learned and ingenious Dr. Nettleton, Author of a Treatise on Virtue and Happiness.

LONDON, January 16.

Yesterday arriv'd a Mail from Holland, with Advice from Vienna, That the Garrison of French which the Count de Khevenhuller has block'd up at Lintz, and which he propos'd to attack about the 31st ult. O. S. consists of no less than 9000 Men, having been join'd by divers Parties which retir'd from the several Posts as he approach'd that Way; and that the Austrians have retaken Neumark and Neukirchen on the Frontiers of Bavaria, as well as the Pass of Scharding which opens a Way into that Electorate, and ravag'd several Villages along the River Inn between Burckhausen and Passau, whereupon the Commandant of the Bavarian Garrison in the Castle of Passau oblig'd the Magistrates to give him the Keys of the Town, and caus'd the Bridge over the Danube to be broke down.

There are Letters of the 4th O. S. from Ratisbon which say, that the Bavarian Velt Marshal de Thoring arriving on the 31st ult. at Passau with about 10,000 Men, and being join'd by other Bodies which augmented the Army of the Allies to 35,000, the Count de Khevenhuller, whose Army 'tis said consist'd but of 16,000, was retir'd from Lintz, the rather because the Garrison which was very numerous was preparing to make a vigorous Defence, and that he heard a great Body of Troops was marching to its Relief.

As the Election of the Emperor remain'd fix'd for Wednesday last, the Quartermaster of the Empire had notify'd to all the Ministers of Foreign Courts, and such Persons of Distinction as don't depend on the Electors, that they must retire from Francfort that Day.

Letters from Berlin say, that the Prussians having summon'd the Commandant of Glatz in Bohemia to surrender on pain of being refus'd Quarter, he demand'd a Capitulation on the 9th, when it was agreed he should retire into the Castle with his Garrison; but 'twas believ'd he could not hold out long, because the Place was small, ill provided, and the Garrison no more than 1400 Men.

Letters from Italy say, that a Conspiracy has been discover'd in Corsica to massacre the Genoese Magistrates in Bastia; and that the Great Duke of Tuscany having sent to the Electress Dowager Palatine at Florence to deliver up the State Jewels to the Captain of his Guards for their better Security by reason of the Spaniards being in the Neighbourhood, she made answer, that she thought them very safe in her own Custody, and that she could not answer to part with them. Mean time the Spanish Agent at Florence has signify'd that the King his Master would be very much surpris'd to hear of such a Proposal, which was injurious to his Catholick Majesty, and if put in Execution, would certainly be resent'd.

Extract of a Letter from the Hague, of Jan. 10, N. S.

'The Expedition of Count Khevenhuller thro' Upper Austria into Bavaria has been executed with as much Vigour and Success, as it was concert'd with Address. On the first March of his Army the Queen issued a Proclamation, dated at Vienna the 23d of December; wherein taking Notice of the unjust Invasion of her Dominions by the Elector of Bavaria, and the Excesses committed by his Troops, she puts the People in mind of the inviolable Fidelity of their Forefathers to the Imperial House, and conjures them to testify the same Spirit upon this Occasion, by assisting to the utmost of their Power to expel her and their Enemies; assuring them that she will always retain a grateful Sense of their Loyalty, of which she will give them sensible Proofs as soon as the divine Providence shall put it in her Power. This pathetic Declaration had a proper Effect, for the Peasants every-where took Arms on Count Khevenhuller's beginning his March, and it is thought have done the Enemy no less Mischief than the Regular Troops. We have Letters from Ratisbon which inform us, that since the Taking of Scharding, the Austrian Hussars made every-where Inroads into Bavaria, which had compell'd most of the rich and noble Families to quit their Country, and to fly to that City, and other Places in its Neighbourhood. Vast Quantities of Baggage belonging to the French Officers with many of their Servants were arriv'd there, from whom they learn'd that Lintz was surrender'd to the Austrians; and that the Bavarian Troops in the City of Passau had absolutely seiz'd upon that City for their own Security, and had put a Guard on the Cardinal Archbishop.

'Our Letters from Italy contain a great deal of strange News. Mantua, they inform us, is put in an excellent State of Defence, a Supply of eighty Brass Cannon being sent thither lately. The Prince of Saxe-Hildburghausen is there with a considerable Body of Austrian Troops, which are daily re-inforc'd, and the Governor of Milan is hourly expected there with the Chancery of that Duchy, which it seems the Austrians are dispos'd to evacuate. The King of Sardinia is on its Frontiers with an Army of 24000 Foot and 8000 Horse, but his Forces commit no Hostilities. His Majesty has sent Orders to all his Troops to abandon Sardinia, which by a private Treaty with Spain he has yielded to Don Philip. The Spanish Troops, it is said, are to march thro' the Pope's Territories, and thro' Tuscany, into Lombardy, where they are not likely to meet with much Resistance; but upon what Plan Things have taken this Turn, even the subtilty of the Italian Politicians are at a Loss to conjecture.

'They write from Hamburg, that they have a Confirmation there of a bloody Action in Bohemia, to the Disadvantage of the Allies. The Reason the double Marriage of the Palatine Princess was put off, was because the new King of Bohemia, who by the way is not crown'd as was reported, intends to be present thereat. The Ban and Arrier Ban of Hungary, supported by a large Body of Regular Troops have enter'd Moravia, and are preparing to attack the Prussians.

The Port Factor, Bennet, from Carolina for Lisbon, having three Spaniards on board to assist them in their Voyage, took an Opportunity to murder the Captain, and others of the Crew, and attempting to carry her into St. Augustine, lost her on the Bar.

The Author intended to have wrote a short Supplement, pointing out the Erroneousness of some spurious Accounts which have been lately publish'd; but as the above History will clearly shew how much the Publick has been imposed upon in that Respect, he thinks it quite unnecessary to trouble his Readers by confuting Accounts so trifling and absurd, that they hardly deserve to be mention'd.
